UNTOLD MISERY
FROM RHEUMATISM
C. H. King, Water Valley, Miss., cured by Ayer's Sarsaparilla

"For five years, I suffered untold misery from muscular rheumatism. I tried every known remedy, consulted the best physicians, visited Hot Springs, Ark., three times, spending $1000 there, besides doctors' bills; but could obtain only temporary relief. My flesh was wasted away so that I weighed only ninety-three pounds; my left arm and leg were drawn out of shape, the muscles being twisted up in knots. I was unable to dress myself, except with assistance, and could only hobble about by using a cane. I had no appetite, and was assured, by the doctors, that I could not live. The pains, at times, were so awful, that I could procure relief only by means of hypodermic injections of morphine. I had my limbs bandaged in clay, in sulphur, in poultices; but these gave only temporary relief. After trying everything, and suffering the most awful tortures, I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Inside of two months, I was able to walk without a cane. In three months, my limbs began to strengthen, and in the course of a year, I was cured. My weight has increased to 165 pounds, and I am now able to do my full day's work as a railroad blacksmith."

DESOLATE.

O morning, hasten with your goad
Of ceaseless care and tedious task;
Give me no respite from your load—
'Tis all I ask.

O strife and tumult of the day,
O toils and trials manifold,
Close in as thickly as ye may,
Loose not your hold.

To memory leave no briefest space
From earliest ray of dawning light,
For all too soon comes on apace—
Ah, God!—the night.

DOWN THE FLUME.

The snow lay deep in the Cœur d'Alenes—yes, more than that, the mining camps were "snowed in." I had not been long in the camp, and it was all new to me, so I naturally tied to Governor Bill, foreman of the Last Chance, during the exciting days of the great snowstorm. The miners gave him that name because he had gone to college with a governor of one of our eastern states. He was educated for the bar, but drink made him a miner, and now that he was reformed the company made him a foreman. When the storm commenced, the mills were all shut down and the water which furnished the power was turned from the various flumes.

The day following the one of the heaviest snowfall it was reported at the lower end of the gulch that an immense snowslide had occurred during the night at the upper end. I procured a pair of snowshoes and hurried to the scene. The manager and Bill were superintending the working of scores of miners—in fact, all the available men.

"What's the matter, Bill?" I inquired.

"The men at the upper mill are buried in this mountain of snow," he answered.

"What! How many?"

"Four. You see, the miners at the boarding house there below escaped, but those who slept in the left of the mill at the head of the gulch had no chance to leave."

Those who have visited the Cœur d'Alenes will recall how steep the buttes rise from the narrow gulches. At places you can scarcely scale them, and even the hardy pines can barely gain a footing.

The wind was now blowing in gusts, carrying clouds of snow from the buttes above, swirling down the slopes, eddying through the gulches and banking the white powder at the very feet of the miners. Shovels were powerless, but the men worked on in the firm belief that they would reach their comrades. But no one knew whether the old building had stood the strain and that the poor fellows were alive.

"It's no go, Mr. Bardon," Bill despondently said. "There is no telling how long the storm will keep up, and even if it soon subsides it will be days before we can reach them. Moreover, they cannot live long in that small building without air."

"I fear you are right, Bill. But it is all we can do," slowly replied the manager.

There was a momentary lull in the storm, when the governor remarked, with an anxious face: "Look at the streak down the butte. That must have been the path of the slide."

"Yes, it originated on the smooth flume." A blinding rush of snow from over the mountains shut out the view. "The wind keeps the flume bare near the top of the slope," added the manager after we had shifted our positions, for the snow was drifting about us.

All day long the men toiled, and all that night reliefs were working, but progress in the shaft was slow, as the snow continually caved in or was carried in by the wind. During the following day and night there was no let up in the work. To me affairs looked more hopeful, for the storm had spent its fury and was now subsiding. That night I asked Bill how deep he thought the snow was where the men were working.

"It's a hundred feet if an inch," he replied, "and we have not made more than 40. Thirty more feet should bring us to the roof, but, you see, it becomes harder the deeper we get."

Evidently Bill did not take as hopeful a view of affairs. I had moved my bunk to the office building, and early the following morning I was aroused by a loud knocking at the door. It was the governor. He looked very determined and hurriedly said that he had planned a scheme, a side issue, during the night and wanted me to join him. Bill had not slept or eaten much since the slide, so worried had he been and anxious to rescue the buried men. He had several hundred feet of small, strong rope with him, and after a hurried breakfast at the officers' mess five of us set out on snowshoes.

"Which way, Bill?"

"To the flume," was all he said.

I did not urge him; it only irritates a strong man to ask him to disclose his plans in time of action. I decided to follow and await developments.

The ascent of the precipitous butte in the gray of morning was no easy task, but by taking a somewhat circuitous route, which followed a "hogback," we avoided the steeper slope and before long reached the exposed portion of the wooden flume.

"And now," said Bill, "we'll move down as far as we can along the flume."

We did so, and after traveling a short distance below the point where the snow first covered the planking we dug several feet and cleared the boards.

The scheme had gradually unfolded itself to me. I saw it all now. Bill was going to have himself lowered down the flume and, if possible, through the 24 inch metallic conduit, which prolonged the flume at a short distance from the mill. Then he would trust to luck at getting through the turbine and into the building. And this was the man who, during the tumultuous troubles of a preceding summer, had stood loyal to the company, and with a few brave men had kept these same miners at the lower end of the gulch away from the company's works. Here he was now straining mind and body to rescue them.

An ax opened the passageway and revealed a dark space of about 2 feet by 4 feet in dimensions. Bill fastened the rope under his arms and lashed his revolver to the inner side of his right leg. "It will be a close fit in the conduit," said he, "but I will need the pistol to alarm the men, should I get to the mill. When the rope is pulled, haul away, and I hope each time you will have a heavy load."

We lowered away, and he disappeared. I felt peculiarly uneasy at seeing the generous fellow leave, though the scheme seemed so feasible that I could not see any danger involved. "If the flume is broken, we will haul him back," I reasoned. I knew he could not use his arms to signal while in the conduit, and I decided to haul away if none came within a reasonable time. The men at work below had suspended operations and stood gazing up at us in wonderment.

On arriving at our elevated position overlooking the gulch I had noticed a decided change in the weather. A "chinook" was blowing—those southwesterly winds which temper the climate of the west, changing within a few hours winter into spring, snow into water. Instead of the blinding snow of the day before, a drizzling rain at first set in, and within an hour had greatly increased in quantity. Surely those soft, gentle winds that bring life to freezing men and beasts as far east as the Bad Lands never bring destruction in their paths.

"This will pack and settle the snow," remarked one of the miners.

We did not then know what effect that would have on the flume. This sluice, which furnished water power for the mill, did not descend in a direct line, but took a diagonal course across the slope.

Bill reached the turbine safely, but had no room to spare the conduit. He told the men below that he felt very peculiar while making this part of the descent, fearful that by some chance he might be fastened there.

On reaching the turbine he fired a shot, but no reply of any kind was made. Then he fired two in succession, and soon the joyful answer, in the shape of hammering on the metallic pipe, greeted his ears. The men, poor fellows, thought the first shot was a breaking timber and listened to it grimly. They had braced the building as well as they could, and were awaiting their fate. When the two reports sounded, they felt sure it was a signal, and Emma Joe (he last worked at the Emma mine) said: "Rouse up, boys. Here is rescue sure."

At first, they afterward told me, it had not occurred to them that any one came down through the conduit. They thought a shaft had been sunk and that the first object encountered was the conduit. They ran to it and hammered—a dull reply, and there was no mistake as whence it came. Bill could only kick with his boot.

Weak and exhausted they worked with desperate eagerness, and after some time removed the turbine. Down dropped Bill among them.

"Thank God, it's Governor Bill!" said Emma Joe. And then these rough, reckless men sobbed with joy.

"What's that, Bill?" Joe inquired.

"It's the snow settling. There is a 'chinook' above. Come, hurry, you fellows, and we will leave this place."

The first man to go attached the rope, pulled at it and was hauled upward.

And the snow continued to settle.

Then two more were rescued and the rope returned.

"Go ahead, Bill."

"No, you, Joe. Hurry!"

"Why, old man, so anxious?"

"Just because the fellows above want to see you, Joe," he almost pleaded. Joe afterward said that Bill looked pale at this time and assumed indifference.

"The heavy snow might crush the flume, Bill."

"It won't crush it."

"Well, then, here goes. Goodby."

When Bill replied, Joe said that he smiled like a woman.

Joe barely passed the point where the wooden flume was united to the conduit. The normal strain was separating them, the angle between them was becoming sharper and sharper, but he bent his body and thus passed through. Then with a horrible feeling he thought of Bill. "And this is why he hurried us," he groaned.

This was the reason. Bill noticed the break when he descended, and he knew what the creaking sounds from the conduit meant, but he never told the others. When Joe reached the surface he barely whispered, "Hurry and lower the rope!"

Too late!

The weight at the rope's end lodged. Joe knew where.

And then the miners dug with frenzy, for Bill was the pride of the camp. When the shaft, sunk through the snow, reached the mill, it was crushed. The strain upon it due to the watered snow had been too great. Governor Bill's body was found revolver in hand, and this told a story. Two days later there was as impressive a funeral at the Last Chance camp as was ever seen on the frontier. They buried him, not in wormy earth, but deep in the fragmentary rock of a played out stope of the mine.

They will tell you now among the Cœur d'Alene mountains of the governor hero of the Cœur d'Haleine, "heart of breath."—Lieutenant Herman Hall in Collier's Weekly.

RICHER POOR.

If I could coin her golden hair,
Or pawn her bright lips' rubies rare,
Or sell one priceless smile,
I'd like to take her to the play
And after that at some cafe
A supper served in style.

If I'd the diamond that lies
Embedded in her laughing eyes,
I'd have it set with care;
And then I'd place the yellow band
Upon her dainty little hand
And leave it shining there.

If I were rich—but then, you know,
Perhaps she wouldn't love me so,
I'm not so very sure;
But if this wealth should mean to part,
To lose the love of her dear heart,
I think I'm richer poor.

THE TEACHER TAUGHT.

Why Sir Edwin Arnold Ceased to Use the Rod on His Pupils.

Sir Edwin Arnold, in his autobiography, tells the unique story of how, as master of the Birmingham Grammar school, he was caned by one of the boys.

The class was engaged on Cicero. Some disorder occurred near the master's chair, and seizing the cane he "gave a nasty cut upon the too tempting back of one youth who seemed to be the offender." "If you please, sir," said the boy, squirming, "I did nothing. It was Scudamore that kicked me in the stomach underneath the desk."

The statement was true. Scudamore had demanded from his neighbor, quite illegitimately, the explanation of an obscure passage, and, not being attended to, had taken this much too emphatic means of enforcing attention. Having called the class up, Arnold said to the doubly wronged boy, who was still rubbing the place: "It is I who am most to blame for having dealt you an undeserved blow. Take that cane and give it back to me as hard as you got it." "No, sir," the lad answered; "I can't do that." The whole great schoolroom was now listening, masters and all. Arnold insisted. "Jones, you must obey me, and if you disobey, I am sorry to say I shall make you write out that page of Cicero three times, staying in to do it."

Whether it was desperation at this dreadful alternative or the sparkling eyes of his class fellows, evidently longing to have the good luck themselves of "licking" a master, that suddenly inspired Jones, I know not. What I do know is that he reached forth his hand, took the cane and dealt me no sham stroke, but the severest and most telling cut over my shoulders. I had no idea that the ridiculous instrument could sting as it did, like a scorpion. "Rubbing the place" in my own turn, I managed to thank Jones for his obliging compliance, and then said to him: "Break that detestable weapon across your knee and throw it out of the window. Never again will we have anything to do with such methods here."

Sir Edwin Arnold adds that corporal punishment is, in his view, a cowardly and clumsy expedient, and that "he who cannot teach without the stick had better get some other business."—London Globe.

Married or Single.

One of the ways of telling whether a man is a married man or not is to examine his pockets. In the pockets of a bachelor you will find:

Half a dozen letters from girls.
A tailor's bill.
Three or four old checks for theater seats.
Bills for supper.
Theatrical looking photographs.
A lot of invitations to dances, dinners and receptions.
A tiny glove scented with violet.

But the married man's pocket will contain:

An old bill.
A couple of unposted letters which were given him to post a week past.
A sample of impossible shade which he must match.
A newspaper clipping telling of a sure cure for croup.
A shopping list ranging from a box of blacking to three yards of lace.
Bills.
More bills.—London Tit-Bits.

A Massachusetts Decision.

The decision of the Massachusetts supreme court that women cannot be made notaries public by the legislature, because they are not expressly named as eligible by the constitution, is illogical and unjust. But it is law so long as a majority of the judges maintain their present opinion. Fortunately judges, like other men, are mortal and will give place sooner or later to more enlightened successors.—Woman's Journal.

A Friendly Comment.

Gladys—I cannot understand why all men seem to take so much to Cora.

Phyllis—It's simply a case of Mary's little lamb.

Gladys—How do you mean?

Phyllis—Well, when the children asked, "What makes the lamb love Mary so?" they were told, "Why, Mary loves the lamb, you know." That's the principle on which the men like Cora.—New York Journal.

A Hair of the Dog.

"The hair of the dog will cure the bite" is a popular statement of the fundamental principle of homeopathy, similia similibus curantur. In the middle ages a common superstition prevailed that when a man was bitten by any animal certain hairs from the creature doing the mischief were necessary in the incantations and charms practiced in order to work a cure.

WATER AND LIGHT.

At a special meeting of the City Trustees held on Thursday evening of last week City Clerk Breitenbach was requested by the members of the Board to examine the statutes and ascertain whether or not a muncipality of the sixth class has authority to issue bonds for public improvements and to what extent.

Last evening Clerk Breitenbach submitted the following report to Trustee Seipp, President of the Board:

Mr. President: This Board at its last meeting on July 9th requested me to examine the Statutes and to report at this meeting whether a municipality of the sixth class has authority to issue bonds and to what extent.

1. By section 866 of the Municipal Corporation Act of 1883 Sonoma City is authorized to incur an indebtedness in excess of the money in the treasury applicable, if two-thirds of the electors so decide at a special election held for that purpose.

2. No city or town must incur an indebtedness for public improvements exceeding 15 per cent of the assessed value of all the taxable property of such city or town. Statues of 1891, page 84.

3. The taxable property in Sonoma for the year 1896-7 is say something over $300,000.

4. The time within which such bonds must be redeemed is forty years, or less than forty years if it be so decided. Every year sufficient taxes, in addition to the general taxes, must be raised to pay the interest on said indebtedness and the one-fortieth part of said bonds if the time is for forty years or the one-twentieth part if the time of final redemption has been set at twenty years. F. BREITENBACH.
City Clerk.

Now, as the question as to whether or not Sonoma can issue bonds for public improvements has been answered in the affirmative the next proposition that will engage the attention of the City Trustees in the matter of water and light is to seek out an available water supply, ascertain what it can be purchased for, cost of piping into the town and laying mains on all the principal streets. An estimate can then be made of the probable cost of putting in an electric light plant. Having secured an estimate on the cost of both water and light together with operating expenses it will then be in order to determine what income can be derived by the city from those sources, and how much interest she will have to pay on a bonded indebtedness.

These matters having been disposed of and it is found that it is a safe proposition for Sonoma to own and operate her own water and light plants it will then be in order to submit the whole matter to the people and let them determine at the ballot box whether or not the town shall be bonded for these much-needed improvements.

The INDEX-TRIBUNE is in favor of issuing bonds for water and light in a sum not to exceed $25,000 or $30,000, provided of course the city can get value received for the money invested and can see its way clear for paying off the interest on the loan and $500 a year toward the principal. Surely the income from both water and light ought to do this and pay operating expenses besides. However that may, be pending the discussion of the question by the City Trustees, whom we are sure are acting faithfully in the interest of the whole people of Sonoma in this matter, we trust that no one having the wellfare of the town at heart will oppose bonding the town on general principles. Be fair. Give our City Trustees, to whom has been entrusted the responsibility of looking after the municipal affairs for the next two or three years, a chance to inquire into the matter of water and light and bonding the town for those much-needed improvements. If a good proposition is submitted by them to the people all ought to stand in and vote for it. On the other hand, if the proposition be an unsafe one for the property - owner it will then be time enough to kick and oppose the bond proposition. But for gracious sakes don't kick until you know what you are kicking about.

In speaking of the nomination of Bryan for the Presidency our Washington correspondent, under date of July 11th, says: "The Chicago ticket and platform is the all-absorbing topic in political circles. Neither was received with more enthusiasm by the Democrats than were the St. Louis ticket and platform by the Republicans a month ago. In fact if there is to be any enthusiasm in this campaign it has yet to make its appearance in Washington. About the first question asked when men meet is, "will the Populists and silver conventions endorse the Democratic ticket and platform?" The answer depends, of course, largely upon what the wishes of the speaker may be. The Populists who are in Washington decline to commit themselves at this time, but it is easy to see that they like the platform much better than they do the ticket. It seems to be conceded by most politicians that if the Populists and silver men, who are to hold conventions at St. Louis on the 22nd of this month, nominate separate tickets, instead of endorsing the Chicago ticket, it will add largely to the chances of Republican success. Silver men would have a fighting chance to win, if they all vote one ticket, but not otherwise; not even if the gold Democrats should put up a ticket of their own, because they are mostly in States which are almost certain to go Republican anyway."

THE Press of Santa Rosa says that there are one thousand Republicans in Sonoma county who will vote for Bryan and bi-metalism. That may be so, but we can't find any of them down this way.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS.

THE HIGH SCHOOL.

Benj. Weed and R. M. Sims Re-elected Principal and Vice-Principal.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Sonoma Valley Union High School Trustees, held last Saturday afternoon, six of the nine Trustees were present as follows: Robt. Howe, F. T. Duhring, T. S. Glaister, Geo. O. Campbell, Prof. Cromwell and Edward Steiger. The absentees were Jos. Dowdall, Jas. Gibson and J. W. Hilton.

When the matter of the abstract of title to the college building, furnished to the Trustees by Dr. Wells at a cost of $82, came up for discussion the fact was developed that the old Board had remitted $50 of the amount to Dr. Wells. Trustee Geo. O. Campbell objected to the payment of the $50 and wished to be placed on record as being opposed to the whole business. Dr. Wells, however, had got the money and that ended the matter.

Benj. Weed was re-elected Principal for another term and R. M. Sims Vice-Principal. There were no other applicants for the positions, it being pretty well understood among the people of this valley that no change of teachers was desired, as both gentlemen had given the very best of satisfaction since assuming charge of the school over eighteen months ago.

The compensation of the Principal and Vice Principal for the new term was not touched upon, but will come up for discussion at the next meeting. The salary paid last term was $100 for Principal and $90 for Vice-Principal.

Hiram Moses was re-appointed janitor, his compensation being rent free for the first floor of the High School building to be used as a private residence.

The school will re-open Monday, August 3d.

APPENDICTIS.

It Causes the Death of John Buckingham.

John Buckingham of Ukiah, Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue for this district, died in St. Luke's Hospital last Saturday from the effects of an operation performed by the surgeons of that institution the day previous. A A seed had lodged in the veriform appendix and the operation was performed in order to save his life. He was too weak, however, to rally after the appendix had been removed, which, by the way, is a very dangerous operation, although frequently successful. Chas. Dal Pogetto, the well-known barber of this place, submitted to the operation in St. Mary's Hospital over a year ago. The doctors pulled him through and he is now enjoying excellent health.

A Successful Hunting and Fishing Trip.

Messrs. Geo. Engler, Al. Griffith, Robt. Fowler and Jas. Fowler returned last Sunday from a week's hunting and fishing trip on the Bishop and Wickersham stock ranges in the northern part of the county. They struck camp about thirty miles west of Healdsburg and report good hunting and fishing in that part of the county. Five deer were killed and trout were caught by the hundreds, varying in size from six to twelve inches.

Arrest of a Suspected Murderer.

On Wednesday last Sheriff Allen arrested an employee on the Senator Fair ranch on suspicion of being John Davis alias Diamond Field Jack, who is wanted in Cassia county, Idaho, for an assault to commit murder. Davis is also suspected of having murdered Daniel Cumming and John Wilson in that county on the 4th of last February. The arrested man, who was lodged in jail at Santa Rosa, says it is a case of mistaken identity and that he is innocent.

Benefit Ball.

The ball to be given this evening at Mervyn Hall, Glen Ellen, for the benefit of the widow and children of the late Charley Gammill, will be largely attended. A large number of people will attend from Sonoma, and besides helping along a worthy cause they will also have a good time.

CRUSHED BY A BOULDER.

A Quarryman's Singular Escape from a Horrible Death.

On Tuesday last John King, a quarryman employed in S. Schocken's basalt block quarries, one mile north of town, had his right leg badly crushed by a large boulder.

King was engaged in getting out rock at the base of a bank forty feet high. Suddenly a boulder, weighing nearly two tons, became detached from the bank and before he could get out of the way the huge rock struck him on the breast and knocked him eight or ten feet. He fell directly in the path of the on-rushing boulder and his fellow workmen expected to see him crushed into a shapless mass. But King wasn't born to die that way. Just as the big boulder was nearly upon him it struck a rock about the size of a large cannon ball and bounded clear over the prostrate man's body. One end of the boulder, however, when it came to a standstill jammed King's right leg against the small rock that had saved his life, badly injuring the limb below the knee. Horror stricken, his fellow workmen rushed to his assistance. They were amazed to find him not only alive but conscious and able to give them directions as to how to remove the boulder that was pressing against his leg. He was picked up and brought to town. King now lies in his cabin under the care of Dr. Davis, with every prospect of a speedy recovery. He says when the boulder struck him he thought his time had come and that he never wants to go through such a thrilling experience again.

A Victim of Leprosy.

A tumble-down wagon arrived in Petaluma from Ukiah on Monday, says the Courier, in which was huddled a sick girl and her father. In front of the sorry vehicle rode an officer, and the party boarded the steamer Gold and proceeded to San Francisco, where the girl was taken to the pest house. Much has been said in the papers of this family. The man's name is Otto Grimm. The girl is Lena, his fifteen-year-old daughter, and their tale is a sad one.

The father, Otto Grimm, homesteaded a claim in Mendocino county two years ago. Fourteen years ago they left Germany for the Hawaiian Islands, where the wife and mother died. They made their way to Mendocino, where leprosy developed. Three months ago the family was warned that the girl must leave. The man locked up his little home and the Sheriff took them to Ukiah. Again came the order to move on, and the Sheriff led them away, till they reached Petaluma. Here they took the boat for San Francisco. The Sheriff put them in a cab for the almshouse and disappeared. Their little home in Mendocino county was burned to the ground by the people there. The few extra garments they had were burned on the road by the Sheriff, and they were left with nothing in the world but what they wore.

The twenty-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Caminati of this place, who has been an inmate of the Home for Feeble Minded at Eldridge for several years, has completely lost his eyesight. He was taken to San Francisco by his parents on Wednesday last to be treated by an oculist of that city.

Great Oaks from Little Acorns Grow,

Is a line from the trite old verse we used to recite in our school boy days. It has a forcible application to those small ailments which we are apt to disregard until they reach formidable proportions. A fit of indigestion, a "slight" attack of constipation, it is assumed, will soon pass off, but is very apt to get worse, and in the meantime is neglected until the ailment becomes chronic, and then, if not entirely eradicated, is a constant annoyance and menace of worse consequence, for diseases, recollect, beget one another. How much wiser to resort to a course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters at the outset of the malady than to temporize with it at the start, or treat it with violent remedies in its maturity. Be on time with disease, or it may "floor" you. Malarious, rheumatic and kidney complaints, dyspepsia, constipation, biliousness and nervousness are all disorders of rapid growth, and should be "nipped in the bud" by a timely resort to the Bitters.

SONOMA INDEX - TRIBUNE.

SONOMA, SATURDAY, JULY 18, 1896.

The Lion's Roar.

Dr. Livingstone noted the odd resemblance of the lion's roar to that of the ostrich. Mr. Millais says that though the roar of the latter is not so loud, it has exactly the same tone as that of the lion. But the ostrich always roars his best, the lion very seldom. This is partly because a "good" roar needs a great physical effort. The whole interior and muscles of mouth, throat, stomach and abdomen are, for the moment, converted into an organ of terrific sound, and the sound does make the earth tremble—or appear to do so. But the attitude is not that usually drawn. Unless he roars lying down, when he puts his head up, like a dog barking, the lion "emits his first moan in any position, then draws in his neck and lowers his head with extended paws, right down to his fore paws, as if about to be violently sick; while at the same time the back is arched, and the whole animal bears an appearance of concentrated strain."

This is Captain Millais' phonetic rendering of the sound, taken when listening to three lions roaring their best: "Moan—roar—r-o-a-r—roar—roar—roar—grunt—grunt—grunt—grunt—grunt (dying away)." Why lions roar, when it ought to pay better to keep silent, is not yet explained. General Hamilton was convinced that tigers hunting in company roar to confuse and frighten the deer. Possibly the lion roars, when prowling around a camp, in the hope of causing some of the draft animals to break loose; at other times it appears to be a form of conversation with others at a distance.—London Spectator.

Lincoln Gave Him a Pass.

Old Michael Malloy, a Morris canal boatman, tells a story of Lincoln. He said that he had deserted from the rebel army, and was in Washington in 1864. His half brother, John Reiley, was a prisoner in the old capitol prison in Washington.

"I wanted to see Jack badly," said Malloy, "but the provost marshal wouldn't let me pass in. I stood near the White House when I saw Old Abe and Secretary Stanton walking together on the other side of the street. Says I to myself, 'I'll see what Abe'll do,' and I goes over and bows with my hat in my hand.

"'Well, my good man,' says Abe, what can I do for you?'

"I ups and tells him how the provost marshal gave me the marble heart, and Stanton moves on while Abe pulls a paper and pencil from his pocket and writes:

"Let this man see his half brother.

"A. LINCOLN.

"I was so glad that I didn't stop to thank the president. But you bet your life I passed into the prison. It 'nd done your heart good to see that provost marshal bow and scrape to me when I handed him Old Abe's note."—New York Press.

New York Police.

One day I saw a boy throw an apple across Ann street at another, but it missed the boy and broke a window. A policeman came rushing across and seized a lad standing in a doorway and the wrong boy altogether. As he was dragging him away the victim appealed to me and I stepped forward and said:

"Officer, the boy who threw the apple ran toward Broadway. This boy"—

"Come along with me!" interrupted the peeler.

"What for?"

"For obstructing an officer while making an arrest!"

I went with him to the station house, and it was exactly 40 minutes before I could convince the captain that I was innocent of any intent to obstruct and secure my liberty. You can think what you will of a New York policeman, but don't try arguments or explanations.—New York Cor. Detroit Free Press.

Echoes From Horses' Skulls.

Those curious twists and turns superstitions take are to be found in the introduction of horses' skulls in or about the church buildings in England and Scotland, the reason alleged being to help the sound in church.

This habit is unquestionably a relic of heathenism where an animal was sacrificed. Some years ago, when an old meeting house in Edinburgh was pulled down, the sounding board space above the pulpit was found to be filled with horses' skulls.

In some parts of England there still exists the idea that if a horse's head is buried in a field there will be an echo.—Pick Me Up.

Her Triumph.

Mrs. Bricktop (bursting with pride)—How d'ye like my new carpet, Mrs. Crosseye?

Mrs. Crosseye (bursting with envy)—It's—er—very nice indeed, Mrs. Bricktop, fer—fer brussels. By the way, I nearly forgot what I came for. I wish you would lend me your lawn mower a few moments.

"Lawn mower? Why, certainly. But what on earth can you want of a lawn mower at this time of the year?"

"I desire to thin down our velvet carpet in the nursery a little. The children are always losing their marbles in it."—London Answers.

A Sure Thing.

First Detective—Ha! Through the aid of the press we will capture our man. I see it here. He cannot escape.

Second Detective—What have you in the paper?

First Detective—A picture of the house in which the man who saw the man who looks like the prisoner lives. The guilty guy will surely be caught now!—Cincinnati Tribune.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

MOTHERS, Do You Know that Paregoric, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, many so-called Soothing Syrups, and most remedies for children are composed of opium or morphine?

Do You Know that opium and morphine are stupefying narcotic poisons?

Do You Know that in most countries druggists are not permitted to sell narcotics without labelling them poisons?

Do You Know that you should not permit any medicine to be given your child unless you or your physician know of what it is composed?

Do You Know that Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, and that a list of its ingredients is published with every bottle?

Do You Know that Castoria is the prescription of the famous Dr. Samuel Pitcher. That it has been in use for nearly thirty years, and that more Castoria is now sold than of all other remedies for children combined?

Do You Know that the Patent Office Department of the United States, and of other countries, have issued exclusive right to Dr. Pitcher and his assigns to use the word "Castoria" and its formula, and that to imitate them is a state prison offense?

Do You Know that one of the reasons for granting this government-protection was because Castoria had been proven to be absolutely harmless?

Do You Know that 35 average doses of Castoria are furnished for 35 cents, or one cent a dose?

Do You Know that when possessed of this perfect preparation, your children will be kept well, and that you will have unbroken rest?

Well, these things are worth knowing. They are facts.

This Horse Can Count.

There is a grocer doing business not far from the south end of Virginia avenue who has a horse that is very regular in its habits. He has learned that the bell in engine house No. 3 strikes 12 times every day at noon, and when the hour comes and the horse hears the bell he turns his ears forward and waits for the boy who always feeds him at that time. The horse will look anxiously toward the store and wait a few moments. If the boy does not soon make his appearance, the horse gets tired of waiting and slowly walks to the stable. Every day as soon as the bell rings the first time at noon people near by notice that the horse becomes restless, and, while a few moments before his head was drooping, at the first stroke of the bell his eyes open wide and he takes on an air of close attention.

One day the firemen concluded to try a mean trick on the horse to see how much he really did know about the number of times the bell rang. They pulled the rope that rings the bell 11 times and then stopped. Immediately the horse's eyes closed and his head dropped into the same listless position it had maintained for some time. The boy soon came out and got into the wagon. He drove home and ate his own dinner, but did not take the horse to the stable. On his return he stopped and put the horse in the stable and fed him. The whole matter seemed to be a surprise to the horse, and now the people in the neighborhood firmly believe the horse can count.—Indianapolis Journal.

Malarial Soil.

The opinion is expressed by Dr. Bachman, an accepted authority in such investigations, that the long current belief that the source of malaria is in the air is erroneous. The germ, he says, which is of soil origin, is strictly a protozoa, reaching its highest development in low, moist ground, with a favorable temperature. Surrounded by the proper soil conditions, this protozoa passes from one stage of life into another with considerable rapidity, so that in the present state of experimental knowledge it is impossible to identify it. Further, this protozoa passes through so many forms or stages of life that in some of these stages it is light enough to float and be transported by the moist air of low grounds, but in this state is comparatively harmless except under extraordinary conditions. Not until the surface water is used does any real mischief begin, when by reason of higher development it has become much more virulent than that floating in the air, and a very short period of incubation is sufficient to develop a severe case of malarial fever in the newcomer who uses the surface water. From personal observation, Dr. Bachman declares that the exclusive use of pure, deep seated water affords entire immunity against malaria in sections of country where no white man would dare to live using the surface water.—New York Tribune.

Evolution of the Microscope.

The microscope has been very slowly evolved and is the creation of no one man. In its present form it is, like a living species according to Darwin, the outcome of the survival of the fittest of innumerable variations, the majority of which have been discarded. Indeed to one interested in microscopes and familiar with the present model nothing can seem quainter than the old forms which prevailed during the earlier half of this century and have since become extinct. In the evolution of the microscope two factors have been dominant, the demand for optical improvement and the demand for mechanical convenience. Both of these demands have been well met, so that there appears little left for the future to achieve until an entirely new direction is opened for further evolution. It need hardly be premised that the optical part is the essential part of a microscope. The optical performance of the best microscopes is today perfect, having become so very slowly by numerous small improvements. Although magnifying glasses were invented, it is said, in the twelfth century, compound microscopes with achromatic lenses have been in use barely three-quarters of a century, while the introduction of homogeneous immersion lenses dates from 1878, and of the perfected apochromatic lenses from 1886.—Charles Sedgwick Minot in North American Review.

His Present.

A little fellow came home from school the other day and announced to his mother: "My teacher said it was her birthday today, so I went out at noon and bought her a present with my 25 cents. I knew you would like to have me." His mother looked a little anxious, "And what did you buy?" she asked. "Handkerchiefs," he answered proudly. "I thought those were a nice, useful present. And I got six for a quarter. Wasn't that cheap?" His mother replied faintly that it was very cheap indeed.—New York Times.

Consoling.

Dr. Coke, at one time chaplain of Greenwich hospital, was, according to James Payn, "a churchman of the tawny port wine school." When called in to minister to one of the patients on his deathbed and finding him perturbed as to his ghostly welfare, he comforted him by saying: "Don't concern yourself about that, my dear fellow. That's my affair."

Morality.

Infinite toil will not enable you to sweep away a mist, but by ascending a little you may often look over it altogether. So it is with our moral improvement. We wrestle fiercely with a vicious habit, which could have no hold upon us if we ascended into a higher moral atmosphere.—Helps.

Limitations of Heredity.

Men are the kind of husbands that their wives make them. No man was born a husband, it should be remembered. Men inherit disease, temper, warts and moles, but they don't inherit wives.—Atchison Globe.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria.
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Aug. 14th, 1893. —I can speak in the highest terms of your medicine from my own personal knowledge. I was affected with heart disease, pleurisy and rheumatism for 35 years, was treated by the very best physicians and spent hundreds of dollars, tried every known remedy without finding relief. I have only taken one bottle of your P. P. P., and can cheerfully say it has done me more good than anything I have ever taken. I can recommend your medicine to all sufferers of the above diseases.

To all whom it may concern. I hereby testify to the wonderful properties of P. P. P. for eruptions of the skin. I suffered for several years with an unsightly and disagreeable eruption on my face. I tried every known remedy but in vain, until P. P. P. was used, and am now entirely cured.

Skin Cancer Cured.

Testimony from the Mayor of Sequin, Tex.

SEQUIN, TEX., January 14, 1893. MESSRS. LIPPMAN BROS., Savannah, Ga.: Gentlemen—I have tried your P. P. P. for a disease of the skin, usually known as skin cancer, of thirty years' standing, and found great relief: it purifies the blood and removes all irritation from the seat of the disease and prevents any spreading of the sores. I have taken five or six bottles and feel confident that another course will effect a cure. It has also relieved me from indigestion and stomach troubles. Yours truly,

CAPT. W. M. RUST, Attorney at Law.
